Parts of a Newspaper Article

Newspaper articles have 7 important parts to them:

- Byline: The name of the author of the article.
- Dateline: A heading that tells where a story is being reported from. (Usually this is where the event took place.)
- Headline: The title of article. Usually printed in bold letters. The title should be catchy and tell the reader what the article is about.
 - o Example:

VIRTUAL CLASSES ARE CLICKING WITH MORE ALBERTA STUDENTS

- Lead: The first few sentences of the story. These lines tell the 4 W's of the story (Who, What, Where, When).
- Explanation: After the lead paragraph has been written, the writer must decide what other facts or details the reader might want/need (the WHY and the HOW) to know. The writer must make sure that he/she has enough information to answer any important questions a reader might have after reading the headline and the lead paragraph. This section can also include direct quotes from witnesses or bystanders.
- Additional Information: This information is the least important. Thus, if the news article is too long for the space it needs to fill, it can be shortened without rewriting any other part. This part can include information about a similar event. The journalist's opinion should not be expressed in the article—just report the facts.

The Inverted triangle

A diagram shaped like an upside-down triangle that notes the content of a newspaper article, listing the most important items first. Most people will read only the headline and the first few paragraphs of a newspaper article, so you have to give them the most important information early in the article.

Headline

Who, What, Where, When
Why, How
Quotes from interviewees
Supporting details
Additional information

Headline: High flying escape ends in death

Byline: By Robin Sloan, July 14

Dateline: LONDON

Lead paragraph: Icarus, son of the famous inventor, Daedalus, plunged into the Aegean Sea and drowned while attempting to escape from the island of Crete early yesterday afternoon. His body has yet to be recovered.

Explanation: Icarus and his father had made wings from wax and bird feathers they had collected over the years while imprisoned on the island of Crete. They attached the homemade wings to their arms and, using a flapping motion, lifted off from the island shortly before noon. While making their escape, Icarus flew too close to the sun. As a result, the heat melted the wax on his wings which caused the feathers to drop off. The wings collapsed and Icarus fell into the sea and drowned.

Additional Information: Daedalus, sobbing from the distant shore where he had landed safely, said, "My last words to Icarus before we left the island was to stay close and not fly too high! He just didn't listen! Why didn't he listen to me?" Daedalus and Icarus had been held prisoner by King Minos on the island of Crete, and had been forced to build a labyrinth at the palace of Knossos. It was known to be the most difficult maze in the world to navigate successfully.

High flying escape ends in death

By Robin Sloan

LONDON—Icarus, son of the famous inventor, Daedalus, plunged into the Aegean Sea and drowned while attempting to escape from the island of Crete early yesterday afternoon. His body has yet to be recovered.

Icarus and his father had made wings from wax and bird feathers they had collected over the years while imprisoned on the island of Crete. They attached the homemade wings to their arms and, using a flapping motion, lifted off from the island shortly before noon. While making their escape, Icarus flew too close to the sun. As a result, the heat melted the wax on his wings which caused the feathers to drop off. The wings collapsed and Icarus fell into the sea and drowned.

Daedalus, sobbing from the distant shore where he had landed safely, said, "My last words to Icarus before we left the island was to stay close and not fly too high! He just didn't listen! Why didn't he listen to me?" Daedalus and Icarus had been held prisoner by King Minos on the island of Crete, and had been forced to build a labyrinth at the palace of Knossos. It was known to be the most difficult maze in the world to navigate successfully.

When was the story written?
Who wrote the story?
Where was the story reported from?
What happened?
Who did it happen to?
Where did it happen?
When did it happen?
How did it happen?	